FIGHTING THE CRIMINAL SYNDICATE

Evolution of Slavery Part III

Will Zoll; September 6, 2022

Links to parts I & 2 display at the end of the article.

We've shown in Parts 1 and 2 how merchants took control of trade. We showed how controlling trade led to central banking, and central banking led to debt slavery. We've shown that the Hanseatic League didn't really come to an end, but quietly moved into corporations and central banking, while also developing the deepest relationships with the monarchs of the day. The distinction between merchant bankers and government was essentially non-existent. Today we see this invisible enemy running the entire world as a global trade network, where they view countries as ports, and people as cargo.

Part 2 concluded with the idea that the patterns of centuries-past are still playing out today. As in the 1600s, the globalist merchants are happy to subject nations to military violence or economic persecution, in order that countries to continue to play by their rules in the game of global trade. Humanity stands on this incredible precipice, staring down these Prussian merchants.

Humanity is coming to the end of a long period of enslavement at the hands of global debt, engineered by the unending issuance of letters of credit. It could never last forever. People are fatigued and desiring release from the shackles of centralized banking and its excessive taxation.

Recall, that the Prussian way is "to kill or be killed"; the word 'surrender' is not in their vocabulary. This invisible enemy is still rolling out its plan upon the nations. It will block trade routes in an attempt to weaken the nations and bring despair to its citizens. The enemy seeks to impose one final layer of slavery upon humanity. This third and final stage will be a brutal examination, but I believe it will be far shorter than the other captivities because the enemy's playbook is now known to us:

Captivity 1 – Physical slavery

Captivity 2 – Debt slavery

Captivity 3 – Identity slavery

The keen mind will observe that phases 1 and 2 still exist in the world. This is because the Prussians are masters at disappearing, but never leaving. This became easier once they occupied the realm of international law, thereby controlling Treaties and Trade Agreements.

Once the Prussian overlords were installed into the World Economic Forum, United Nations, World Bank, World Health Organization, Council on Foreign Relations, etc., they could literally control the entire world. Aid Agencies and NGOs all over the world would help create the illusion that slavery and human trafficking had ended, and that any re-emergence of such atrocities was isolated, and would be quashed by these noble international watchdogs. Sadly, we are now observing that not all these agencies can be trusted.

Today, all three layers of human slavery are being brought to light. The enemy is not backwards in telling us what they are doing, but so many people are not paying attention to one of the most serious issues on earth, at this time – a digital identity.

Identity-slavery is taking place on two levels.

The abstract self: Ideological warfare and color revolutions force us to confront an abstract identity of ourselves. They call people racists, neo-Nazis, homophobes, xenophobes, right wing, left wing, and on it goes. The media gaslighting is the primary origin of these attacks, but so is long-term indoctrination, thanks to the education systems.

The enemy's plan is for us to either agree with these accusations or fight against them. Even this process of choosing, plays into their hand. As people join with the gaslighting and start accusing others, more noise is created around these false identities. Any engagement with the arguments around a false identity, gives it life.

As outlined in two previous articles: (1) Prussian Weaponized Philosophy and (2) Hegel, War, the Owl and the Slaves of Bohemia, the key to avoiding this form of identity-slavery is to simply understand Hegel's 'master – slave dialectic'. Understanding that we are being tricked into identifying as a slave or a master; a victim or a tyrant; allows us to transcend this narrative completely. Victory is ours when we just don't play their game.

The corporate self:

The second aspect to identity-slavery is more sinister, and this awareness will be a unique journey for each of us. Once the Prussian enemy took control of corporations, we have demonstrated that they quickly took control of the world's chemical and pharmaceutical industries.

In recent years, these globalist corporations have created more and more medicines and owned their patents. For the most part, these recipes were synthetic versions of natural remedies, which cannot be patented, because they occur in nature. Someone once said, "you can't patent what was created by God". The corporations have honored this, and resorted to a strategy of "modify it, in order to own it". This approach logically took humanity into the realm of genetic manipulation.

However, in 2021, something significant occurred. An aggressive world-wide push was made by the World Economic Forum in partnership with the World Health Organization to have the entire human population vaccinated, with a trial therapy using a system that had never been tested on humans. Given such an unprecedented event, many are raising questions about whether the motive behind such a push, really was about protecting human health.

The exposure of the Schwab family and the WEF is detailed in our article titled ReichsWEF – Part

4, and there is reasonable cause for concern:

In the case of Klaus Schwab himself, it appears that he has helped to launder relics of the Nazi era, i.e. its nuclear ambitions and its population control ambitions, so as to ensure the continuity of a deeper agenda. While serving in a leadership capacity at Sulzer Escher Wyss, the company sought to aid the nuclear ambitions of the South African regime, then the most Nazi adjacent government in the world, preserving Escher Wyss' own Nazi era legacy. Then, through the World Economic Forum, Schwab has helped to rehabilitate eugenics-influenced population control policies during the post-World War II era, a time when the revelations of Nazi atrocities quickly brought the pseudo-science into great disrepute. Is there any reason to believe that Klaus Schwab, as he exists today, has changed in anyway? Or is he still the public face of a decades-long effort to ensure the survival of a very old agenda?

The last question that should be asked about the real motivations behind the actions of Herr Schwab, may be the most important for the future of humanity: Is Klaus Schwab trying to create the Fourth Industrial Revolution, or is he trying to create the Fourth Reich?

Did the name of Klaus's father provide a grim foreshadowing of the horrors that would follow during the Holocaust? Eugen is an uncommon name meaning "noble aristocrat". Was Escher Wyss committed to perfecting noble gene sequences?

In this Unlimited Hangout edition, the past that Klaus Schwab has worked to hide is explored in detail, revealing the involvement of the Schwab family, not only in the Nazi quest for an atomic bomb, but apartheid South Africa's illegal nuclear program. Especially revealing is the history of Klaus' father Eugen Schwab who led the Nazi-supported German branch of a Swiss engineering firm into the war as a prominent military contractor. That company, Escher-Wyss, would use slave labor to produce machinery critical to the Nazi war effort as well as the Nazi's effort to produce heavy water for its nuclear program. Years later, at the same company, a young Klaus Schwab served on the board of directors when the decision was made to furnish the racist apartheid regime of Auth Africa with the necessary equipment to further its quest to become a nuclear power.

With the World Economic Forum now a prominent advocate for nuclear non-proliferation and "clean" nuclear energy, Klaus Schwab's past makes him a poor spokesperson for his professed agenda for the present and the future. Yet, digging even deeper into his activities, it becomes clear that Schwab's real role has long been to "shape global, regional, and industry agendas" of the present in order to ensure the continuity of larger, much older agen das that came into disrepute after World War II, not just using nuclear technology, but also eugenics-influenced population control policies.

We are now learning that the Covid-19 vaccines are better described as gene therapy, due to the insertion of mRNA into the body. It is emerging that this therapy appears to exert some level of control upon the behavior of the immune system. Some speculate that it may even change the DNA, but confirming is still a way off, although the invisible enemy's infatuation around DNA and merging our biological identity with their digital identity is not hidden:

It's now time for the Internet of Bodies. This means collecting our physical data via devices that can be implanted, swallowed, or simply worn, generating huge amounts of health-related information" ~ Xiao Liu, WEF

Since when does Hillary Clinton have a problem with young children being flown to unfamiliar islands full of rich white people?

Evolution, continued from page 2 Klaus has also written openly to contract their faith to a corporate drug, rather than trust their natural immune system. Could the next host that the invisible enemy controls, be the very essence of life itself – human DNA?

Klaus has also written openly about the need to separate humans from natural and environmental processes, by creating a digital identity:

Dr. Zelenko consistently claims the following comment by Klaus Schwab:

In 2016, Klaus Schwab, in an interview said something very strange. He said, that within 10 years, every single human being will be tagged with a digital identifier. ~ Dr. Zelenko about the need to separate humans from natural and environmental processes, by creating a digital identity:

His wording is clever, but the awakening masses are no longer fooled. The globalist's desire to tax carbon and nitrogen tells us all we need to know; they want to charge us for fresh air and our right to breathe. They are taxing the very essence of life. At some point we all need to say "no more".

The convergence of the physical, digital and biological worlds that is at the heart of the fourth industrial revolution offers significant opportunities for the world to achieve huge gains in resource use and efficiency. As Project MainStream, the World Economic Forum's initiative to accelerate the transition to the circular economy, has shown, the promise is not just that individuals, organizations and governments can have less impact on the natural world but also that there is great potential to restore and regenerate our natural environment through the use of technologies and intelligent systems design.

SHAMED INTO SILENCE

Discussing Election Integrity

By Kurt J. Grinsteiner and Greig Veeder, September 26, 2022

MASTRIANO: Mother Theresa told Hillary Clinton there hasn't been a female president yet bc you probably aborted her

I dare you to try to discuss election fraud in any public setting. Heck, you can't discuss election integrity with family or friends without being shamed into silence.

As I write this, I recall last week I saw a massage therapist who told me not to reschedule with her, and the reason was obvious. She did not want to hear any more of my views about voter fraud while I lay on the table. This was more important to her than taking my money.

Interestingly, Rasmussen Polling, as of June 6, 2022, has inflation as the matter voters are most concerned about; the second is election integrity. One of obvious differences between #1 and #2 on the "most concerned about" list is that everyone is talking about #1, but no one will openly discuss #2, and yet #3 through #6 are openly discussed. They are violent crime, gas prices, illegal immigration, and school issues. So why is election integrity not fair conversational game, much less a source of open curiosity?

The fact that there is so much general concern that is concealed from open conversation, that is, the media is very quiet about something most care deeply about, must have significant meaning, especially since the other top matters of political concern are much more openly discussed. So what meaning is to be derived from this lack of open discussion?

Elections are central to a functioning democracy - it's the only actual measure of the will of the people. It is the only way to hold those who govern us accountable. Without accountability, corruption and incompetence go unchecked. Our political offices will be held by the most ruthless individuals who only represent their own avarice and paranoia.

For elections to be successful, and thus our Republic, the people must trust the outcomes of elections without question. Once there is sufficient doubt about the legitimacy of office holders, their decisions quickly become questioned and ignored. Noncompliance with laws becomes commonplace and governments increasingly rely on fear and intimidation to exert their power. If you have any doubt, listen to Joe Biden's rhetoric vilifying half of the voting population or read about the recent FBI raids.

"Elections are central to a functioning democracy"

Fairness of elections and the integrity of our voting systems should be central to any political discussion. If anyone from any political persuasion has reservations about an election, the remedy should be transparent and accessible; voter registrations must be reviewed, ballots inspected, and recounts common enough to prove beyond any reasonable doubt that ballots were handled appropriately, and votes audited with full transparency.

So why are those in power so eager to shame those who voice their desire for more election transparency? There is an obvious concerted effort to squash any discussion about election integrity from both parties. This fear has seeped into popular culture to such an extent that families and friends are hesitant to even mention the words to each other. This should not be a taboo subject.

We want to hear from readers with personal life examples of being shamed into silence, particularly around conversations of election fraud. Send stories to us at Feedback@GreigVeeder.com.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

You may not realize it today, Dear Reader, but one day you will. YOU were born into a spiritual battleground. None of us asked for this, but we were chosen for a time such as this. The battle between good and evil existed long before us and it's important to know that God and Satan are not equal foes. God is far superior in every way. One day God will wipe Satan off the face of the earth, but until then we are called to put on the full armor of God and fight evil on every front.

You have a choice. You always have had a choice to decide which side you're on. God's people are often the pawns on this giant chessboard. Satan's power falls far short of God's power. So, what do you do when you can't hurt someone? Your strike out at his children, you hit him where his heart lives and in what he loves. Satan is after You. Your way of life, your belief systems, and all you hold dear. Today we face the annihilation of our country and the burning down of our Freedom.

The bad news for the evil ones is... not only were you born for this battle; you were born to WIN! (1 John 4:4b)

Satan isn't afraid of you; he is afraid of he who is within you – GOD! God made you with a genetic code that is unlike anything else on the planet. Your genetic code runs deep into every cell and is marked by the hand of God. With the Holy Spirit that is within you, you can rest in peace knowing YOU are on the winning side of the war. Now GO OUT and live like a child of God full of life and hope and Take Back Your Country!

At this point, we're about 10,000 leagues beyond "the spike protein leaves your body after a few days!".

We're up to "The mRNA shots alter the composition of practically every cell in the human body".

Are you paying attention yet?

that happened is not a statistical "fluke." Something caused a very big change.

3. Others in the industry are seeing it too.
4. It isn't COVID. COVID deaths are down this year.
5. Whatever it is that is causing this, it is bigger and more deadlier than COVID and it's affecting nearly everyone.
6. The CDC is totally on top of this... ok, just kidding... the CDC is clueless as usual.

All of this means that "something" is causing MASSIVE numbers of excess deaths in 2021.

I wonder what is killing all these people?

Here are the clues we have, so we need someone really smart to piece this mystery together:

1. These deaths started only after the vaccines rolled out
2. The deaths are "primarily working-age people 18 to 64" who are the employees of companies that have group life insurance plans through OneAmerica. That's not to say 65 and over aren't affected as well. What's key is that we're seeing effects in young people.
3. There are more excess deaths than anytime in history, so it is likely caused by a new threat, never seen before in history, like a novel vaccine that has never been used before or something new like that that a huge number of people would be exposed to (such as by a state that pushes vaccination).
4. Not due to COVID (COVID deaths are way down).
5. They are dying from a variety of causes, not just a single cause. So this rules out food or air-based pathogens. I note that the variety of causes of death is consistent with the wide range of adverse events caused by the COVID vaccines, for example.
6. It has to affect massive numbers of people to get an effect size that high. So it is something new affecting at least half the population, like a new mandated vaccine for example.
7. There is a huge push for vaccines by the Indiana governor, he wants to have everyone vaccinated. Interesting. "Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb doubled down on the drive to get everyone in the state vaccinated."

8. Useful fact: Adults 65 and older account for 16% of the US population but 80% of COVID-19 deaths in the US, somewhat higher than their share of deaths from all causes (75%) over the same period. We'll use that 75% stat later.
9. It isn't just the one life insurance company, they are all seeing this huge rises at other insurance companies. So this is something huge and national in scope, like a vaccine mandate in the entire US, or something like that.
10. "Just to give you an idea of how bad that is, a three-sigma or a one-in-200-year catastrophe would be a 10% increase over pre-pandemic," he said. "So 40% is just unheard of." This suggests it has to be a novel pathogen (like a novel vaccine, for example). It has to be something first introduced in 2021, you know, like a new COVID vaccine.
11. The company is seeing an "uptick" in disability claims, saying at first it was short-term disability claims, and now the increase is in long-term disability claims. So whatever it is is killing people and those that aren't killed are disabled. You know, like what the COVID vaccines are proven to do (since I believe VAERS).
12. Brian Tabor, the president of the Indiana Hospital Association, said that hospitals across the state are being flooded with patients "with many different conditions," saying "unfortunately, the average Hoosiers' health has declined during the pandemic." In a follow-up call, he said he did not have a breakdown showing why so many people in the state are being hospitalized – for what conditions or ailments. But he said the extraordinarily high death rate quoted by Davison matched what hospitals in the state are seeing. So this could all be caused by the COVID vaccines.

Unprecedented: Deaths in Indiana for ages 18-64 are up 40%

This is huge. Something is killing healthy people at an unprecedented rate. It isn't COVID. Could it be the "safe and effective" COVID vaccine? I think so. Here's why.

Steve Kirsch
Jan 3

1,214

Start by reading this story, "Indiana life insurance CEO says deaths are up 40% among people ages 18-64." Read the whole thing now.

Here's the link to the video from the CEO.

Note: In the event this story "disappears" from view, I kept a backup. You can't be too careful nowadays.

This is big. Really big. And I'm not the only one that thinks so.

Key points:

1. Deaths among 18-64 year-olds (who don't normally die) are up by 40% in 2021 vs. pre-pandemic levels
2. This is huge. HUGE. They've never seen anything like this before in their history. Normally death rates don't change at all. They are very stable. It would take something REALLY BIG to have an effect this big. The effect size is 12-sigma. That is an event that would happen by pure chance every 2.8e32 years (as shown in the image below). That's very rare. It's basically never. The universe is only 14 billion years old which is 1.4e13. In other words, the event

- The number of hospitalizations in the state is now higher than before the COVID-19 vaccine was introduced a year ago, and in fact is higher than it's been in the past five years, Dr. Lindsay Weaver, Indiana's chief medical officer, said at a news conference with Gov. Eric Holcomb on Wednesday. So again, whatever is killing people is worse than COVID. It can't be COVID since we have so many vaccinated people with our safe and effective vaccine that prevents COVID deaths.
- The CEO of the insurance company doesn't think the vaccines are causing the deaths and disability. Check out this tweet: he is requiring his employees to be vaccinated! So it cannot be the vaccine, even though it fits all the facts! Darn! The CEO knows that the vaccines are safe and effective. He has no evidence to back that statement up, but we should believe him since he's an authority figure (you know, like the CDC). We can always trust authority figures, and even more so when they have no evidence. Who needs evidence? Science has been displaced in 2021.

So I must say, I'm baffled. I had thought it was the COVID vaccine because it fit all the evidence except the last item. I was so close...

Here is the death rate by age from the CDC below. See how stable it is from year to year? Amazingly stable! So when you get a 40% jump, that is unbelievable. It is a 4-alarm fire.

 SOURCE: National Center for Health Statistics, National Vital Statistics System, Mortality.

Extrapolating this to the rest of the country

We know that about 3M people die a year in the US. 75% are over 65 years old, so that leaves us with 750K deaths per year for under 65.

If that jumped by 40% from pre-pandemic levels in Q3 and Q4, we should assume that Q2 was the ramp up period (we'll assume a linear ramp up in Q2).

So that is 75K deaths per quarter for Q3 and Q4 and half of that, 37K deaths in Q2.

So that means roughly 187K excess deaths are probably happening for ages 18-64 due to some new cause.

Comparison with number predicted from VAERS for the same age range in the US

Let's see if this might match the number killed by the vaccines in the US for the same age range. I used 65 in the query, meaning "under 65":

National Vaccine Information Center

Government Disclaimer on use of this data

Age	Count	Percent
17-44 Years	446	20.69%
44-65 Years	1,710	79.31%
TOTAL	2,156	100%

(2156 deaths in VAERS - 40 background deaths) * 41 (the URF) and we get 87K deaths.

Which means either:

- There is another effect at play which is actually killing more people 18-64 than the vaccine is (unlikely but possible)
- My URF of 41 is underestimating deaths by a factor of 2.15

I'm going with explanation #2. I've always said 41 is a conservative URF for deaths. The 41 is computed from anaphylaxis rates which are the most likely events to be reported to VAERS. It wouldn't surprise me at all that deaths are under-reported by a much larger ratio.

Even worse: the insurance companies will jack up the premiums for firms in low-vaccinated areas to pay for the deaths in the other regions. Blame the unvaccinated!

What's interesting is what OneAmerica Life Insurance CEO Scott Davison about the higher than normal actuarial death rate. Listen to the part where he said "Premium Load":

"Most of us in the industry are starting to target and to add a premium loads onto employers that are based in counties that have low vaccination rates."

It means they are blaming the higher than normal death/disability rate on the unvaccinated (which is nonsensical).

So the insurance companies had a wrong assumption and are blaming the wrong party perhaps because they didn't have the data to see what was really behind the issue or they didn't want to challenge the narrative and get in trouble. It could be a combination of the two reasons.

This is huge. My closest friends all noticed this article too and wrote about it.

I only found out about these articles after I wrote my initial draft last night. I wanted to sleep on it before I published.

Three of the people I talk to most frequently about vaccine-related issues are Jessica Rose, Mathew Crawford, and Robert Malone.

What do you know: all three of them published their substacks on this topic before I hit the "Publish" button. So I'm late to the game.

My friends concur with my reaction of the significance of this article.

For example, Malone wrote:

just like I wrote (independently). We probably wrote it at the same time.

Here are the links to the articles:

Robert Malone's article

What if the largest experiment on human beings in history is a failure?

Excerpt:

It is starting to look to me like the largest experiment on human beings in recorded history has failed. And, if this rather dry report from a senior Indiana life insurance executive holds true, then Reiner Fuellmich's "Crimes against Humanity" push for convening new Nuremberg trials starts to look a lot less quixotic and a lot more prophetic.

AT A MINIMUM, based on my reading, one has to conclude that if this report holds and is confirmed by others in the dry world of life insurance actuaries, we have both a huge human tragedy and a profound public policy failure of the US Government and US HHS system to serve and protect the citizens that pay for this "service".

IF this holds true, then the genetic vaccines so aggressively promoted have failed, and the clear federal campaign to prevent early treatment with life-saving drugs has contributed to a massive, avoidable loss of life.

AT WORST, this report implies that the federal workplace vaccine mandates have driven what appears to be a true crime against humanity. Massive loss of life in (presumably) workers that have been forced to accept a toxic vaccine at higher frequency relative to the general population of Indiana.

Insurance companies - just like banking, not so boring anymore!

Excerpt:

So what does this tell us? It tells us that we are potentially in a huge steaming pile of shit. To be frank. These indications from our friend at the insurance company are simply that - indications. If what we are seeing in VAERS, and the other adverse event reporting systems, is the mere reflection of what is actually going on with regards to injuries, which I presume it is, then we ain't seen nothing yet. And if what is being reported with regards to immune deficiencies associated with these injections is not simply anecdotal or representative of a small sub-cohort of individuals, we could be looking at a government imposed complete health disaster. We will have to pull together to get through it, as I always say.

To end this write-up, as Robert said, I hope I am wrong. But I fear that I am not.

Mathew Crawford's article

Why are Non-COVID Deaths at Historic Highs in Indiana?

Excerpt:

Davidson described a 10% increase in mortality as a 3-sigma (standard deviation) event, so that makes 40% a 12-sigma event. That's statistics talk for how far from ordinary unusual events are. For clarification, a three-sigma event should happen around once every 300 or so years and a six-sigma event should happen once every 300,000 or so years. We're talking about the proportion of the area under a normal curve that is shaded in proportion to the total area. We would really need to zoom in on it quite a bit to detect with the naked eye.

This is not just about COVID-19, but not one person in the news conference comes out to discuss vaccine deaths or injury, not even to allay the fear. They don't want to discuss it.

This is not an isolated incident

Life insurance death claims shoot 41%, up 3.5x in 2021

In Phoenix, the death rate of city employees (14,000 employees) in 2021 doubled from the 10-year average. That's not a 40% increase. That's a 100% increase. There is clearly something going on that is not unique to Indiana.

Excess mortality figures in Europe and the UK seem to show younger people are dying faster than the elderly, and that people 0-14 are dying faster in the second half of 2021 as compared to the first. More evidence showing that the vaccines are killing kids.

Reaction from the mainstream press was predictable: they ignored it

The mainstream media didn't pick up on this at all. It is 7am PST on January 3 and I just did this Google query and found the ONLY story was the original story. Nothing else. Nobody else thought it was important. Just me and my friends.

Is there another explanation for all of this?

Is there a better explanation that fits the number of deaths and the causes of death? I wouldn't want to leap to conclusions.

There could be something we haven't thought of. For example, did you know that Twitter determined that the huge rise in athlete deaths since the jabs were rolled out were due to "dehydration, overheating and undiagnosed heart conditions."

The fact that these deaths were happening in the winter was immaterial. And the fact that they cited no evidence to back up their hypothesis was expected. And they didn't explain why it didn't last year or in any other year. An exercise for the reader I guess.

There is no stopping condition for the vaccine

It's important to point out that unlike every other clinical trial that would be approved by an internal review board (IRB), this one does not have a pre-defined stopping condition.

The CDC and FDA cannot pull the plug on the vaccine because no stopping condition was pre-defined.

And nobody in Congress will set a stopping condition (we asked Members of Congress "How many kids have to die before you will call a halt to the vaccines?" and they all refused to answer).

What you can do about it are based on a blockchain ledger. Blockchains can be either decentralized or centralized, but the most known cryptocurrencies today (Bitcoin, Ethereum, etc.) tend to be decentralized in nature. This makes transfers and payments very difficult to trace because there is no single entity with full control.

Government-issued digital currencies, on the other hand, will be controlled by a central bank and are likely to be easily trackable. They would have the same value as the local cash currency, but instead issued digitally with no physical form.

105 countries are currently exploring centralized digital currencies. Together, they represent 95% of global GDP. The table below lists the data used in the World infographic on page 10.

What are the Benefits?

A major benefit of government-issued digital currencies is that they can improve access for underbanked people.

This is not a huge issue in developed countries like the U.S., but many people in developing nations have no access to banks and other financial services (hence the term underbanked). As the number of internet users continues to climb, digital currencies represent a sound solution.

To learn more about this topic, visit this article from Global Finance, which lists the world's most underbanked countries in 2021.

The 9%

Just 9% of countries have launched a digital currency to date.

This includes Nigeria, which became the first African country to do so in October 2021. Half of the country's 200 million population is believed to have no access to bank accounts.

Adoption of the eNaira (the digital version of the naira) has so far been relatively sluggish. The eNaira app has accumulated 700,000 downloads as of April 2022. That's equal to 0.35% of the population, though not all of the downloads are users in Nigeria.

Conversely, 33.4 million Nigerians were reported to be trading or owning crypto assets, despite the Central Bank of Nigeria's attempts to restrict usage.

Status in the U.S.

America's central bank, the Federal Reserve, has not decided on whether it will implement a central bank digital currency (CBDC).

Central banks around the world are getting involved in digital currencies, but some are further ahead than others.

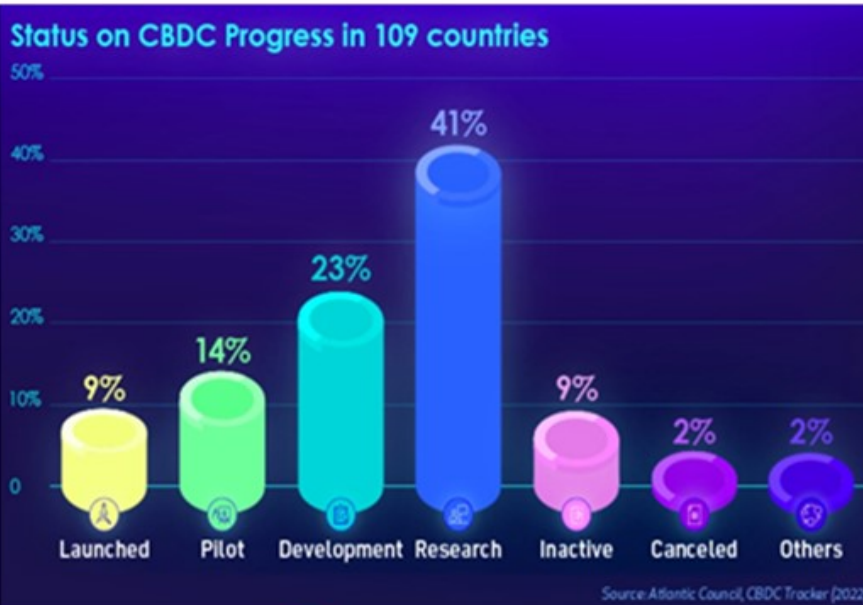

In this map, we used data from the Atlantic Council's Currency Tracker to visualize the state of each central banks' digital currency effort.

Digital Currency – The Basics

Digital currencies have been around since the 1980s, but didn't become widely popular until the launch of Bitcoin in 2009. Today, there are thousands of digital currencies in existence, also referred to as "cryptocurrencies".

A defining feature of cryptocurrencies is that they

1. Intermediated
2. Privacy Protected
3. Identity verified, so it would not be anonymous. It would not be an anonymous bearer instrument

4. Transferrable or interoperable.

So we would be looking to balance privacy protection with identity verification which has to be one, of course, in a traditional banking system, as well."

Rich Dems Worried About Trump Are Buying Second Citizenships

‘GET OUT OF JAIL FREE’

Emily Shugerman Senior Reporter
Noah Kirsch Wealth And Power Reporter

For years, David Lesperance, an immigration attorney who helps wealthy Americans obtain second citizenships, saw a similar type of client: millionaire MAGA-heads, Silicon Valley libertarians, new-money crypto investors—basically, rich guys who wanted out of the U.S. tax system. But in recent months, he’s seen an increase in a surprising clientele: moneyed liberals who are terrified about the political future of the country and want an escape plan.

“I was on vacation two weeks ago, I answered emails and I set up phone calls for when I came back,” Lesperance said. “In the last week I had nine new inquiries. Typically I may get one or two a week.”

So-called “golden visas” have become a white-hot status symbol among the ultra-rich in recent years. Some 30 countries now offer citizenship or residency by investment, which allows individuals to live and work in a foreign country simply by spending a lot of money there—a second citizenship starts at several hundred thousand dollars and stretches to several million. For a time, the clientele was also fairly conservative, driven by fears of a pending liberal “wealth tax” or—for the tech bros—a pending IPO that would result in a massive taxation event. Now, however, the demographics have begun to shift dramatically.

Lesperance says he saw a nine- to ten-fold increase in liberal-leaning clients this summer, driven by everything from the mass shooting in Uvalde to the Supreme Court decision overturning Roe v Wade. Mel Warshaw, a tax attorney who occasionally partners with Lesperance on these cases, confirmed an increase. And Eric Major, the CEO of residency and citizenship firm Latitude, said he first saw a surge in Democratic clients after the siege on the Capitol in January 2021.

“There are people who are convinced that this country is filled with lunatic Christian fundamentalists and good old boys from the South, and [that] that’s what we’re going to become. And so they’re making plans,” said Marc Hyman, founder of E-2 Visa Solutions, who observed the same pattern among liberals. “A lot of people have a second citizenship as a Get Out of Jail Free card or as a life raft in case America becomes unlivable... and, you know, the shrimp is no longer cold in the Hamptons.”

Citizenship by investment schemes started with people trying to get into the United States, not out of it. Canada introduced the first such program in the 1980s, hoping to attract wealthy, talented individuals into the country. The United States, Britain, Australia, and New Zealand soon followed. Those were investors’ main options until the global financial crash of 2007, when European countries launched similar schemes to boost their economies.

Major, the CEO of Latitude, said most of his clients in the early days were Hong Kong businessmen worried about a Chinese takeover. Then, as China became a global economic powerhouse, more and more wealthy clients there started securing his services to move abroad.

“They were generating huge amounts of wealth, and in case something went wrong or there were political changes, they were looking at it from an asset protection point of view,” added Glen Craig, of Stanford Knight & Partners, who saw a similar trend.

The Arab Spring in 2008 also brought a wave of interest from millionaires in the Middle East looking to relocate to Europe or North America. The stereotype of a golden visa recipient still mirrors these trends—that of an ultra-rich tycoon from a politically unstable or autocratic nation. Vito Magagnino, CEO of the Swiss firm Mirabello Consultancy, described a former client in the Gulf who drove a golden Rolls-Royce. During their first meeting, the client forgot to bring his original birth certificate, so an assistant was dispatched to take a three-hour private jet flight to retrieve it, he said.

Not every applicant is quite that wealthy. Major gives his clients three different investment options, depending on their income level. For clients worth about $2 million, the easiest choice is the Caribbean, where a family of four can secure citizenship for less than $200,000. For those with a net worth in the tens of millions, there is Malta, which gets investors access to all of the European Union for just $1 million. And for the ultra-wealthy client looking for something even more prestigious, there is Austria, which allows a small number of individuals per year to claim citizenship by bringing “a significant contribution” to the country’s economy—usually to the tune of more than $3 million.

Despite forking over a significant amount of cash, most people seeking second citizenships aren’t looking to immediately relocate. Instead, experts say, they’re simply looking for a fallback plan.

“The vast majority of clients... get it because it’s an insurance policy. It’s a Plan B,” said Dominic Volek, head of private clients for the investment migration consultancy Henley & Partners. “Wealthy people, they want the option.”

It helps, of course, that many foreign nations have temptingly low tax rates—though dodging Uncle Sam isn’t as simple as fleeing the country. The U.S. is one of few nations that taxes citizens who live abroad, meaning that Americans typically must renounce their citizenship to enjoy the full benefits of a tax haven.

GOP senator: AZ foster kids are being sold into sexual slavery

BY: JIM SMALL - OCTOBER 4, 2019 6:37 AM

While he said he hopes his meetings ultimately prove him wrong, Farnsworth said he is more convinced than ever that Arizona children removed from their parents and put into group homes or foster homes are being sex-trafficked, even though he told Yellow Sheet he has turned up no evidence.

“When I first heard about this, I believed that children from Arizona (DCS) were ending up in sex trafficking. Now, after the research I’ve done, I’m confident of it,” he told Yellow Sheet. “But I can’t prove it.”

Farnsworth also alleged that two former Republican state senators from other states who were killed within days of each other earlier this year were “executed” because they were investigating links between their own states’ child protective agencies and global sex trafficking rings.

There is no evidence that either legislator was murdered for that reason.

Linda Collins-Smith, a former senator from Arkansas, was killed by a close friend and former campaign aide. And Jonathan Nichols, a former senator from Oklahoma, died by suicide.

The dispute between Farnsworth and Brophy McGee stems from what she said was a conversation in which she told her colleague that both she and her husband were concerned for her safety after some of Farnsworth’s allies in the child-sex-ring investigation began harassing her and spreading rumors that she and others are involved in illicit child kidnapping schemes. Brophy McGee told the insider publication that Farnsworth’s compatriots are “unbalanced” and have forced her to have Senate security guards escort her to and from meetings about DCS, but Farnsworth has been unconcerned.

Bur Farnsworth told Yellow Sheet that, while he initially didn’t take Brophy McGee’s comments seriously, he decided to file a complaint with DPS because the “best deterrent to a threat is for more people to be aware of it.”

He said he fears the children have been abducted and sold into a global sex trafficking ring, and said he has been holding meetings with DCS, critics of the agency and fellow lawmakers, including Brophy McGee.

A conservative Republican senator who is convinced that the Arizona Department of Child Safety is facilitating the global sex trafficking of children removed from negligent parents called the police on one of his GOP colleagues, alleging that she threatened his life.

Sen. David Farnsworth, a Republican from Mesa, filed a report with the Arizona Department of Public Safety this week accusing Sen. Kate Brophy McGee, R-Phoenix, of threatening him if he didn’t stop investigating the outrageous claim. The news was first reported by Yellow Sheet Report, a high-priced insider newsletter aimed at lobbyists and government officials.

Farnsworth told Yellow Sheet that he has been looking into how DCS “lost” more than 550 children last year, roughly half of whom are categorized as either runaways or otherwise missing. The rest appear to be flagged for paperwork errors.

He said he fears the children have been abducted and sold into a global sex trafficking ring, and said he has been holding meetings with DCS, critics of the agency and fellow lawmakers, including Brophy McGee.

Farnsworth acknowledged his beliefs were outlandish, but he said it’s not a conspiracy theory. He told Yellow Sheet that he didn’t believe DCS officials were actively selling children into sexual slavery, but that they are being lax at protecting children from predators who will do so.

No surprise, then, that more people are planning to do just that.

"I would say one out of five clients that I've spoken to out of the U.S. in the last two years has told me that they're planning on renouncing their citizenship in the next five to 10 years," said Armand Tannous, vice president at Apex Capital Partners.

The surge in Americans looking for second citizenships started in 2020. Most of the citizenship-by-investment firms that spoke with The Daily Beast said they previously had only a negligible number of U.S. clients. Now, according to Patricia Casaburi, the CEO of Portugal-based Global Citizen Solutions, the majority of her clients come from the United States. Volek said the volume of American clients at London-based Henley & Partners increased more than 400 percent in 2020, making it the company's largest market by far. They are now in the process of opening their first offices in Miami, New York, and Los Angeles.

The initial driver of this trend, several experts agreed, was the pandemic. Many countries banned U.S. travelers for a period, owing to its poor handling of the virus, and wealthy Americans started to see their U.S. passport as a hindrance. At the same time, more companies started operating remotely, making it possible to split time between two or more countries even while working.

Jason Swan, senior partner at Holborn Assets, recalled a rich couple with a daughter who worked in tech and didn't "want to be tied to any one particular country." By obtaining a pair of golden passports, Swan said, their daughter would immediately get a visa as well.

But the trend really entrenched itself around the time of the 2020 presidential election. There were a few conservatives who reached out with concerns about a Biden-era wealth tax, experts said, but they were far overshadowed by liberals terrified by Trump's attempt to discredit the election. Their fears only increased after Jan. 6, 2021, when five people died in an unprecedented siege on the Capitol.

Even after Biden entered office, liberals found no shortage of things to fear. Major saw a surge in clients concerned about raising a family in the U.S. after the Supreme Court overturned Roe v Wade. Warsaw is currently helping relocate an individual who doesn't want his children to experience a school shooting or have to go through mass-shooter drills. And with Biden's poll numbers dangerously low and the presidential election looming, some liberals are reaching out for fear of Trump being reelected in 2024.

A year or two ago, these people weren't coming to me," Warsaw said. "But now, the floodgates are beginning to open."

Not all of these clients are traditional liberals. Some, Lesperance said, are moderates or Republicans who disagree with the direction of their party under Trump. One couple he works with are a pair of civil servants who served under both the Obama and Bush administrations, and were troubled by Trump's recent promise to drain Washington of "rogue bureaucrats." They feel, Lesperance said, like they have "a target on [their] backs."

What all this means for the country isn't entirely clear. Few of these firms' clients have actually left the United States; most see it as a kind of security blanket. But some of the advisors think the trend illustrates the larger fraying of democratic institutions, and of citizens losing faith in their country.

The main emotion Major senses from his clients, whether they come from Connecticut or California, is nervousness, he said.

"Whether they're nervous because they fear they can get shot, or because they're African American and something could happen [to them], or because they think there's another civil war coming. Whatever it is, they're nervous," he said.

"America is known for its confidence," he said. "Right now it doesn't have much of it."

UNKNOWN CAUSES: Montage Video Goes Viral of Recent Gateway Pundit Posts on Sudden Death Syndrome (VIDEO)

By Jim Hoft

Published September 20, 2022 at 12:00pm

The Gateway Pundit previously reported that around 15,000 doctors, scientists, and professionals from all around the world declared that there is an international medical crisis due to the diseases and deaths following the administration of products known as "COVID-19 vaccines."

"We are currently witnessing an excess in mortality in those countries where the majority of the population has received the so-called "COVID-19 vaccines," according to the news release. "To date, this excess mortality has neither been sufficiently investigated nor studied by national and international health institutions."

"The large number of sudden deaths in previously healthy young people who were inoculated with these "vaccines," is particularly worrying, as is the high incidence of miscarriages and perinatal deaths which have not been investigated."

Reports from the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS) including non-domestic reports showed there are now over a 1.4 million cases of COVID-19 vaccine adverse reactions including more than 30,935 deaths through September 9, 2022.

When you have a strong conservative voice, the roaches crawl out of the cracks.

PP: The US Constitution is the foundation of our American freedoms. Given that our Constitutional Rights allow for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness by guarding against governmental overreach. Do you believe the current Land Use Regulations are fair for citizens across Park County?

Wissel: Land Use Regulations & Zoning laws determine how the 50,000 parcels of real estate in the County are used. We have multiple layers of regulations controlling use and activity by zone. The theory of the LUR is for people to have an understanding and expectation of what goes on in their neighborhood. We must consider different rules for different regions. A "one-size-fits-all" approach does not work in our unique and varied County.

PP: What's your stance on Protecting our 2nd Amendment Rights.

Wissel: The Bill of Rights says the Right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed. I believe in the wisdom of our forefathers to trust the people to protect themselves and their property. Currently, Park County is a sanctuary county against the unconstitutional gun seizure laws ("Red Flag Laws") implemented by the State. I will ensure that Park County remains a 2nd Amendment sanctuary county. I will also work to ensure that citizen's rights to reasonably set-up and safely use personal ranges on their own property is not infringed.

PP: A lot has been said, and silenced, around Election Integrity

Wissel: It is imperative that people know that their voice is heard and that the results of an election are accurate and secure. There is enough evidence to justify people's concerns of election fraud, and general lack of integrity. I will work with the County Clerk of Park County to help secure our elections.

PP: What does that look like?

Wissel: Opening more in-person voting locations across the county, implementing voting safeguards that mirror the "Improve Public Confidence Election Validity" measure (SB21-007) that was proposed by Sen. Paul Lundeen (R) in the CO Senate in 2021. This measure would promote election confidence by limiting voting in person to a 7-day period. Institute procedures by which mailed ballots are only sent when requested, and require all counting to be completed by end of election day. We should compare hand counts to system total to ensure the totals match. More to come on this.

PP: Why 7 days of voting? Why not 1 day?

Wissel: In the old days, we had 13 precincts and 13 voting places and, both Clerk's offices in Bailey & Fairplay. Citizens could vote at all locations on the same day. This was preceding all-mail ballot voting, which began in 2012. We've been on this all mail ballot track since then. We can return to in-person voting, and it was done successfully by the County providing the resources and locations for traditional "election day". Today, we have "election weeks".

PP: You have said you will bring financial transparency to Park County, why is this important to you?

Wissel: Democracy dies in the dark. It is imperative that Park County citizens are not only aware of how their hard-earned money is being spent, but also have a say in where money should be spent.

PP: How will you do that?

Wissel: I will publish summary reports for the public to review in a format that is easily understandable. People shouldn't have to have a finance degree in order to read a budget report.

I believe citizens should have access to public financial records, and not be hesitant to request financial information for fear of retaliation. I will ensure that any citizen, group or journalist obtains the information needed to hold their government accountable.

I will use qualified local citizens to bring outside perspective into the yearly budget process, evaluate current / historic spending priorities, and advise the BOCC. In addition, my career as County Assessor has given me a thorough understanding of the County budgets; I would like to train interested citizens how to understand budget line-items how money is being spent.

We need to restore TABOR protections and slow the rate of property tax increases. I fully support the TABOR amendment

PP: You've been targeted with hit pieces by other political figures in the county. Other than recognizing you're over the target, is this why you're getting so much attention?

Wissel: Yes, I'm not well liked by some, because I am firm in my convictions which makes me the perfect candidate to shake up the status quo.

PP: You have said you will 'Be Available' available to the citizens of Park County, what does that look like in practice?

Wissel: Elected Officials represent and report to the People, so we should be available to the People. Many in Park County feel that their concerns are not being heard or taken seriously by Park County officials. There is a lack of social and communication connection that makes voicing your concerns and ideas difficult.

PP: How would you put that into action?

Wissel: I will hold monthly online or in-person "Fireside with the BOCC" meetings where citizens can ask questions directly, comment on current issues and get to know me and any other BOCC member who'd like to attend in a welcoming and open environment. I would be available 5 Days a Week during normal business hours, and I would respond to e-mails. If you took the time to write your message, I will take the time to read it and ensure you receive a response.

PP: I know that refocusing Park County Water Management efforts is on your agenda. Tell me about that.

Wissel: I will dedicate my 30 years water experience to help Park County. In full disclosure I sit on the HASP Board (Headwater Authority of the South Platte) who makes augmentation water sale available to customers throughout the district's service area. The County entered into a Joint Water Defense Agreement in 1996 to fight the Aurora South Park Conjunctive Use Project (SPCUP). In 2012 the County started duplicating water augmentation services, which used funds for hiring and training new personnel. I will look closely into the structure and work to improve our individual and collective water rights portfolio and to save taxpayer dollars. This works is critical and must be done as soon as possible.

I will also work with leading water rights administrative and legal experts to help Park County gain augmentation water rights within the Upper South Platte and Arkansas River Basins. We need to renew historic partnerships to save time and precious fiscal resources.
